Dog sniffs out deadly cancer

MIRACLE MUTT Baby saved Bonnie Whitfield from a painful death.

. . . and saves woman's life!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Weekly World News

LONDON — Incredibly lucky Bonnie Whitfield could be six feet under instead of enjoying her 44th birthday if her amazing pooch hadn't detected her deadly cancer.

For weeks, the miracle mutt sniffed at a suspicious mole on Bonnie's right thigh until her family made her go to dermatologist Dr. Andres Pembrocke.

"The mole was cancerous and the doctor removed it immediately," Bonnie remarked.

"He said it is a good thing I came to him when I did or I might be fighting for my life instead of blowing out birthday candles."

Neither Bonnie nor her hubby, John, or daughter, Jane, could understand why their mixed breed pet, Baby, was so interested in the mole.

"Baby was unusually attracted to the mole," she said. "Every time I sat down, Baby was at my feet sniffing at the mole. He was making a real pest out of himself."

Hubby John finally nagged Bonnie into seeing Dr. Pembrocke at the dermatology department at King's College Hospital in Denmark Hill.

Dr. Pembrocke removed the mole and sent it to a lab for a biopsy report. Tests revealed the mole was cancerous.

"Fortunately, the cancer was in an early stage," Dr. Pembrocke said. "It didn't have an opportunity to spread. If it hadn't been for her dog, she might not have known until it was too late."

Was the wonder dog drawn to the cancerous mole by some super sense that he and other dogs possess? Or was it because of Baby's special relationship with Bonnie?

"I don't know the answer to that," Bonnie remarked. "I only know I owe my life to him."

FURIOUS GAL RUNS OVER MUGGER — TWICE

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — A raging-mad woman was charged with manslaughter after she ran down a purse-snatching mugger with her car — then made a U-turn and did it again.

By RICK TRACY
Weekly World News

"No one is going to get away with that," cops said Yolanda Spears told a friend before she roared away in her Plymouth Horizon to look for the man who had punched her in the face twice and swiped her purse.

Witnesses told cops the angry, 21-year-old woman was doing about 50 m.p.h. when she ran over Philip Young, 29, the second time.

Young suffered severe injuries to the head and upper body, a broken pelvis, a broken arm, a broken clavicle and internal injuries. He died two hours later in a hospital.

What had been a fun-filled evening turned deadly soon after Miss Spears and friends left a nightclub at 2:30 a.m.

A man identified later as Young hit her in the face twice, grabbed her purse and the purse of a friend and ran. A bystander who witnessed the mugging chased down Young and retrieved the purses.

While the other woman was thanking the Good Samaritan for his heroics, the mugger disappeared in the darkness.

"Getting her purse back wasn't good enough for her," said a witness.

"She wanted revenge and went after the guy."

She drove onto a sidewalk to hit the mugger a few minutes later, but missed, according to a police complaint. Witnesses said she turned around and zeroed in on him again, sending Young flying into the street, cops said.

Miss Spears turned around, accelerated to about 50 m.p.h., took aim on Young, who was lying motionless in the street, and ran over him, witnesses told police.

"That (expletive) don't play like that with me," she told friends after the incident, according to the criminal complaint.

Police arrested Miss Spears three days later at a friend's house in Omaha, Neb. She is charged with first-degree intentional manslaughter, which could send her to prison for life if she is convicted.

STONE AGE HUMANS CLONED FROM 50,000-YR.-OLD DNA!

REAL LIFE JURASSIC PARK?: Stone Age newborns could soon populate the Earth.

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

BOSTON — A noted geneticist has cloned four Stone Age humans from some 50,000-year old DNA!

A press release attests that the clones have been seen and studied by hundreds of scientists, lab technicians and other experts.

GENETICIST: Dr. Terrence Locworth.

Two baby girls and two baby boys were reportedly cloned from cells taken in 1992 from corpses preserved in African lava rock.

"The bodies were those of a prehistoric family that had apparently been surprised by the explosion of an erupting volcano," said Dr. Terrence Locworth, whose books on genetics are taught in universities worldwide.

"They lived during the late Paleolithic Period, around 45,000-50,000 B.C.

"The bodies were instantly preserved and sealed in the lava.

"I extracted some Deoxyribonucleic Acid — DNA — from each of the cadavers, put the samples into artificial wombs and injected them with a formula that stimulants look like modern human babies with the exception of high cheekbones and sloping foreheads. They also exhibit primitive survival instincts, not unlike those found in animals but missing in modern man.

"For instance, they were walking at six weeks," says Dr. Locworth. "We had to lock them in cages after they attacked and tried to "kill" a toy teddy bear."

The respected scientist says a team of anthropologists and biologists are studying the clones in his secret laboratory.

A colleague says, "Dr. Locworth has accomplished a real-life breakthrough in cloning that makes the ones in the movie Jurassic Park look trivial by comparison."

Details of the astounding project will be published next month in scientific journals worldwide.

Why men can't talk about their feelings!

Experts are finally learning what wives and girlfriends have known for years: Men really do have trouble expressing feelings — and their reluctance to open up is programmed into them by society!

The proof comes from a brand-new study by Dr. William Pollack of Harvard Medical School, who reports: "Men are not wearing knots. As little boys they're taught

JUDGE ORDERS FEUDING NEIGHBORS HANDCUFFED TOGETHER

HANDCUFFED neighbors Lou Romburdt, left, and Carl Trugel standing in front of Carl's house.

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

NEW YORK CITY — A judge made peace between two feuding neighbors by ordering them to be handcuffed together four hours a day for three weeks.

Prior to the bizarre sentence, Lou Romburdt, 31, and Carl Trugel, 38, had been to court 17 times for disrupting their neighborhood with their nonstop squabbling. "I got sick of seeing them," said the judge.

. . . for 3 WEEKS!

TOGETHERNESS: Carl and Lou are shown in handcuffs in photo taken during their first full day of the bizarre punishment. Each one tries to stay on his own property.

He ordered the men handcuffed together from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. seven days a week, telling them to return in 21 days.

"It took a few days but finally we realized we'd have to start getting along or life would be hell," says Trugel, a supermarket manager.

"Out of sheer necessity we started being more considerate of one another."

Romburdt, a salesman, says, "Since there was no way to get away from each other, we finally had to talk things over calmly. I saw a whole side of Carl I'd never seen before.

"We had a long talk about all the things that caused friction between us, like property boundaries, his guests blocking my driveway and me playing loud music late at night. We reached a compromise on all of the issues and came away with more respect for one another's feelings."

They returned to the judge and told him their problems had been resolved.

Since then they've had no further arguments between them.

Self-help books can DESTROY your marriage!

By GAIL DWYER
Weekly World News

Want to make love last? Then ignore marital self-help books and follow your own instincts!

That's the surprising new recommendation from author and marriage expert Judy Pearson.

"A lot of books claim basic rules make marriages work," said Miss Pearson, who is a recognized authority on family relations. "But when you look at couples who've had happy marriages for over 40 years, you find that following those simple rules isn't the key to their success at all."

For example, many experts say talking honestly with your partner is a main ingredient in a happy marriage. They also recommend not ignoring disagreements or they'll fester.

But those bits of advice are hogwash, according to Miss Pearson, author of Lasting Love: What Keeps Couples Together.

"I found wonderful marriages that defied these arguments," she said. "Successful couples can ignore a problem or have a distorted way of talking about it and it doesn't sour their relationship.

"Dragging the problem into the open to talk candidly about it would be a recipe for disaster."

Miss Pearson also found that plenty of happy couples don't always try to see things from their partner's point of view. They often deny their problems. They convince themselves that their partner's faults are actually assets. And they're not always fair to each other.

But these couples succeed because they genuinely love each other and are too darned stubborn to give up when the going gets tough.

"People make marriages last in their own way," said Miss Pearson, an expert in interpersonal communications. "In the end, old-fashioned love is more powerful than any expert advice."

Cute babies get more love than ugly ones, says study!

Cute babies get more love and attention from their mothers than less attractive babies do!

That's the sad and startling finding of a brand-new study by researcher Jean Ritter. The study, done at an Austin, Texas, hospital, compared the behavior of 67 new moms who had attractive firstborn babies with 69 mothers who had not-so-cute firstborns.

The cuter infants got more affection from their moms than the homely ones. The moms held them more and cooed to them more, saying things like, "Hi, cute baby. You're such a cute baby."

The "cuteness" of the children was determined by independent judges

The real Wyatt Earp was just a 2-bit gunslinger — NOT a hero lawman!

By LOU MARTIN / Weekly World News

Legendary lawman Wyatt Earp wasn't really a hero — he was a gunslinging con man and cardsharp who spent most of his years on the wrong side of the law!

And unlike the character Kevin Costner plays in the 1994 hit movie Wyatt Earp, the real Wyatt was never a marshal.

"His brother Virgil was the marshal in Tombstone," said Jack DeMattios, editor of The Earp Decision.

"Wyatt was his deputy — and never anything but a small-town policeman.

"He was an opportunist trying to make his fortune by investing in mining claims and saloons."

Here are other eye-opening facts about the real Wyatt Earp, who was born in 1848:

● At age 23 he was caught stealing horses in Oklahoma. But he broke out of jail and eventually fled to Wichita, Kan. — where he joined the police force!

● Earp was soon run out of Wichita after he pocketed some fines and punched out a leading citizen.

● Wyatt was also a deputy — and a church deacon — in Dodge City, Kan.

But he left after he got in trouble again, this time for slapping a dance hall girl.

● He also made a living as a card player in Texas — and was once run out of a Texas town for trying to swindle several people with phony gold bricks.

● The gunfight at the O.K. Corral didn't really take place at the O.K. Corral in Tombstone, Ariz. It happened on a nearby vacant lot.

● Wyatt had three wives. His first died a year after they married. His second turned to prostitution after they split and later killed herself.

But his third wife, Josie Marcus, ruled the roost, according to pals who say Wyatt was henpecked.

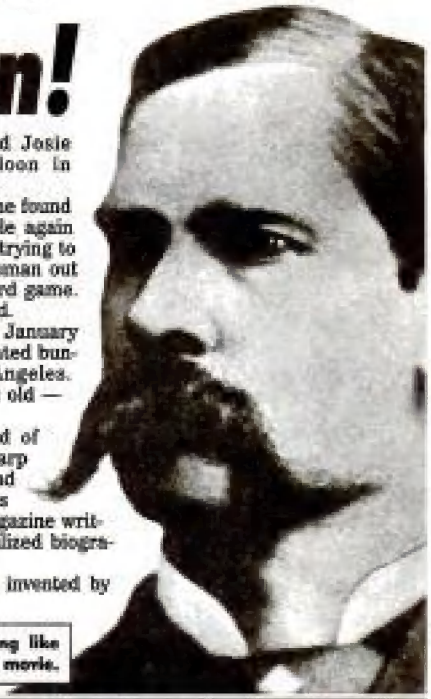
● During the Klondike gold rush, Wyatt and Josie operated a saloon in Nome, Alaska.

● At age 63, he found himself in trouble again — charged with trying to cheat a businessman out of $2,500 in a card game. He was acquitted.

● He died on January 13, 1929, in a rented bungalow in Los Angeles. He was 80 years old — and broke.

● The legend of heroic Wyatt Earp — gunfighter and lawman — was born when a magazine writer did a fictionalized biography in 1931.

The rest was invented by Hollywood.



THE LEGENDARY Wyatt Earp, right, was nothing like the character Kevin Costner portrays in the 1994 movie.

250-lb. chair runs in circles while victim writhes in pain!

'I WAS RUN OVER 14 TIMES BY MY ELECTRIC WHEELCHAIR!'

By BOB TAYLOR / Weekly World News

Hapless paraplegic Frank Kenna was jostled out of his motorized wheelchair on a bumpy street — but that was only the beginning of his nightmare.

Once he was on the ground, the battery-powered vehicle started running in circles — and crushed him under its wheels 14 times before it tipped over!

"All I could think was, 'Oh my God — here it comes again!'" said Kenna, who was hospitalized for cuts, bruises and seven cracked ribs after the nightmare ordeal in Memphis, Tenn.

"Now that it's over, I can see the humor in it. But when it was happening, I wasn't laughing. That wheelchair weighs 250 pounds. It could have killed me."

PAINFUL MEMORIES! Frank Kenna reenacts the scene — to warn other paraplegics of what could happen to them.

'Oh my God, here it comes again!'

The gut-wrenching drama unfolded when Kenna, who lost the use of his legs in an auto accident 5 years ago, decided to ride his motorized wheelchair to a convenience store five blocks from his home. Along the way, he hit a pothole — and toppled to the pavement.

"It all happened so fast I didn't have a chance to react," explained Kenna, 34.

"By the time I got my wits about me and looked up, I could see the wheelchair bearing down on me like a locomotive.

"I tried to roll my body out of the way but I couldn't move fast enough. I yelled for help but it was too late.

"The wheelchair hit me like a truck."

The impact stunned Kenna but he instinctively covered his head with his arms. About 20 seconds later, the wheelchair came full circle — and ran over him again.

"I could hear my ribs cracking and the pain was beyond me but there was nobody in sight.

"To make matters worse, the front wheels of the wheelchair were jammed and it was coming round and round in circles.

"I wanted to get out of the way but I couldn't.

"I was a sitting duck."

Kenna said the wheelchair ran over him 14 times before it tipped over in the street.

The next thing he remembers is waking up in a hospital emergency room, groggily watching a doctor wrap his cracked ribs.

"He told me a passerby found me in the street and called an ambulance," said Kenna, who remained in the hospital for three days before he was released.

"It all seems like a dream to me now but I did learn a lesson," he added.

SUSAN SMITH BEATEN UP

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Angry inmates beat baby-killer Susan Smith to a pulp less than three weeks after she was convicted of the murders of her two children — and we've got the photograph to prove it!

The picture clearly shows America's Most Hated Mom with a bruised and bloodied face that at least one observer calls "a mere taste of what this bitch can expect to get."

By NICK MANN
Weekly World News

REPORTER Peter Fleare.

SUSAN SMITH: Before the beating.

Officials aren't talking. But sources say the 23-year-old woman sobbed uncontrollably for several hours after the attack at South Carolina's Women's Correctional Institution, asking over and over, "What did I do to deserve this?"

"Susan Smith didn't get the death penalty after her conviction, but the day will come, if it hasn't already, that she'll wish she had," said Peter Fleare, the Washington-based free-lance journalist who claims to have obtained the photograph of Smith "from a highly placed, South Carolina source."

"Prison inmates despise child abusers with a passion that defies description," he continued.

"Many of them were reared by parents who were abusers themselves.

"They remember the pain they felt as children, and the anger and resentment comes boiling out when they encounter a child abuser in prison.

"But Susan Smith didn't just abuse her children, she drowned them. Her days truly are numbered."

Smith strapped her children, 3-year-old Michael and 14-month-old Alex, in car seats and rolled the vehicle into a lake near her home in Union, S.C., last fall.

The cold, calculating lies she told about events leading up to their deaths, and her apparent lack of remorse, literally shocked the world.

And millions were stunned again when a jury handed down a guilty verdict after her trial for the murders — but recommended a prison term instead of the death penalty as punishment for the crime.

Authorities acknowledged that her life would be in danger from other inmates and decided to keep Smith in isolation for her own safety.

"But no prisoner, no matter how isolated, is ever completely safe — and that's why I wasn't surprised to hear of an attack," said Fleare.

"What does surprise me is the speed with which the other inmates got to Mrs. Smith.

"I would have guessed that she would have gone a little longer, at least four or five months, before somebody nailed her."

Smith reportedly was treated for minor bruises, cuts and sore ribs and returned to her cell before the day was out.

Insiders say guards will continue to do their best to keep her safe. But there seems to be little doubt that the woman will be at risk "24 hours a day, seven days a week, 52 weeks a year," Fleare said.

SCHOOL BRINGS WOMAN BACK TO LIFE!

The Change Is Unbelievable!

She was worried about her job, her future...Things were going from bad to worse and when it looked like nothing would ever change ICS helped her turn her life around!

Ann worked the night shift in a convenience store. She wasn't satisfied with her job, she never had any money, she worked at night and slept during the day. She wasn't meeting people, wasn't having fun, she felt like her life was over.

A better job, more money, more time for herself! Ann knew what she wanted, but getting it seemed impossible. She didn't have the money to go to an expensive college or take night school classes because of her work schedule. Ann felt hopeless and she was sure she'd be working for pennies for the rest of her life.

Opportunity Knocked

One night, things were slow at work so Ann was looking through a magazine. She wished she could afford the beautiful clothes she saw, she dreamed about the far-away vacation spots she read about. The next page was an advertisement and she almost turned the page, but something made her read it.

She read about the chance to make more money, the opportunity to get a rewarding, good-paying job, the possibility to have the kind of life she was imagining minutes before.

School Made a Difference!

The ad was for International Correspondence Schools and Ann read all about the 57 different career opportunities they offered. Accounting, Computer Programming, High School Diploma, Catering and Gourmet Cooking, Legal Assistant, Travel Agent, Medical Office Assistant, Animal Care Specialist and much more!

It sounded great, but when did she have time to go to school?

ICS helped her solve that problem too! ICS students study at home in their spare time! ICS offers Career Diplomas and Specialized Associate Degrees. ICS also had the courses and programs that could make a difference. The ad said NO OBLIGATION so Ann sent away for her FREE personalized Career Pack.

When it came in the mail, she liked what she saw. Easy, no-interest monthly payments...the ability to set her own schedule and study when it was convenient for her...the equipment and materials she received with her course. Ann got it all from ICS—even her own computer. Enrolling was easy and completing the course was even easier.

Look Where She Is Today!

Today, Ann is earning good money working as an analyst for a finance company. She has a new apartment, new friends and a great new outlook on life.

She still stops at the convenience store–to get coffee on her way to her new job. She swears that if it wasn't for ICS, she'd still be working there!

Cemetery where people are buried next to their pets!

DOROTHY BUSH, left, and cemetery owner Pat Strnat at the grave site of Gene Bush, and three of Bush's dogs.

By R. NEALE LIND
Weekly World News

LINCOLN, Neb. — Pet lovers who never want to be separated from their animal friends can arrange to be laid to rest with them when they die — at Rolling Acres cemetery, which caters to both pets and humans!

"We offer caring, quality burials, extruded styrene insulated caskets, even grief counseling," said owner-manager Pat Strnat, former president of the International Association of Pet Cemeteries.

"We realize that some folks' closest and most meaningful relationships are with their animals.

"Just as husbands and wives want to rest together for eternity when they die, many people feel that same special closeness to their dogs or cats."

Mrs. Strnat got the idea to open Rolling Acres 18 years ago back in 1977 when her beloved miniature dachshund, Okie, died. "I called the Humane Society and asked them where I could get a private cremation for Okie," she says. "They laughed at me. The only cremations available for pets were bulk burnings in which many animals are cremated at the same time.

"I decided then and there that I would provide dignified private cremations and burials for pets."

The idea of honoring pet owners' wishes to be buried with their animals came later when people began requesting it.

Because of the relatively small size of Rolling Acres, Nebraska law requires that people be cremated before being buried there. "One elderly couple even ordered a vault for themselves and their three cats," says Mrs. Strnat.

"They're all entombed there together."

Animal lover Dorothy Bush, whose faithful dog Prince Charlie was recently laid to rest at Rolling Acres beside her husband Gene Bush and two of her other dogs, says, "If you want to be buried with the liars, the cheaters, the murderers and the rapists, fine — pick an ordinary cemetery. But every pet and human buried here at Rolling Acres is buried with love."

LAID TO REST with his dogs: Gene Bush.

Q Who has made People magazine's "Worst Dressed" list the most times? Is it Roseanne?
— Cindy L., Miami, Fla.

A Roseanne has made the list three times, but the champs of bad duds are Sarah Ferguson and Madonna, who've had the dubious honor five times — one more than Arsenio Hall and Daryl Hannah. The Worst Dressed last year was TV sexpot Christina Applegate.

CHAMPS OF BAD DUDS: Madonna & Sarah Ferguson.

Q I hear Demi Moore's upcoming movie is based on The Scarlet Letter. Next year in my English class we're supposed to read that book. If I see the film, will I be able to pass an essay test and bypass all that tiresome reading?
— Tony E., Dayton, Ohio

A Don't count on it. Word is that the script takes lots of liberties with Nathaniel Hawthorne's classic novel about a woman who has an affair with a minister.

"What was interesting for us wasn't to do a straight reproduction," said director Roland Joffe. "This isn't the book."

Not everyone is happy about the changes. Yale professor and critic Harold Bloom believes the film will cheapen the story.

"Hawthorne would have been horrified," he says of the picture. "I don't think I'll see it."

RED LETTER GAL: Demi Moore.

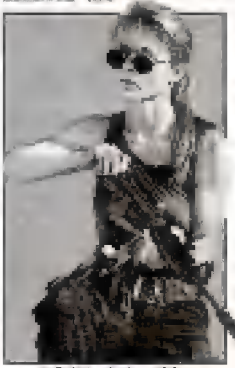
Q Yippee! I hear we get to see gorgeous Cindy Crawford naked as a jaybird in her new movie Fair Game. Is that for real?
— Robert S., Boise, Idaho

A Sorry, fella — Cindy put her foot down and got that nude shower scene scrubbed. "The scene just felt gratuitous to me," explained the strong-willed model turned actress. "They kept saying it was about me having this moment. And I said, 'Then why do you have to see my ass?' "



BODY of the '90s: Linda Hamilton.

Q Beauty and the Beast and Terminator 2 star Linda Hamilton must have one of the most underrated bodies in Hollywood. The woman is a fox — big time — but nobody seems to give her any credit. Why?
— Danny M., Baton Rouge, La.

A Do you live under a rock? Linda has been called the "Body of the '90s" by TV and film critics and EVERYONE agrees that the lady, as you put it, is a total fox.

On the flip side of the coin, Linda isn't too keen on the accolades, saying: "I want to be the BEING of the '90s — mind AND body. I don't want everybody looking at my muscles when I work out. It's absurd!"

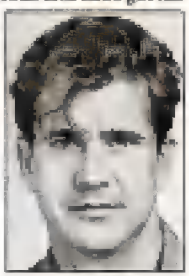
Q Mel Gibson plays dashing roles, but he seems like such a boring family man to me. Has he ever done anything crazy?
— Wayne K., Toronto, Canada

A Absolutely. Take his diet, for instance. Gibson loves to sample bizarre foods and once got his kicks by eating a chunk of roasted dog while making a movie in Taiwan.

"It was a black dog," the star recalls fondly. "Apparently black ones are preferred. It was illegal. It wasn't a puppy but it wasn't old either. And it was delicious — tasted like rabbit."



DOG-EATER: Mel Gibson.

Q I hear astronaut Neil Armstrong is a diehard couch potato. What was his funny quote about exercise in Go magazine?
— Sid C., Los Angeles

A The astronaut, who turned 65 on August 5, isn't a big fan of exercise. Here's what he said in Go: "I believe every human being has a definite number of heartbeats available to him, and I don't intend to waste any of them running around doing exercise."

ROLY POLY ROYAL: Queen Elizabeth.

Q Help me settle a bet. I say Lois and Clark star Dean Cain played professional football before he got into acting and my husband says "no way." Back me up, Christie. I've got a lobster dinner riding on this.
— Debbie T., Agawam, Mass.

A Enjoy your lobster, Debbie. Dean was a Buffalo Bill before he got into acting and believe it or not, he says the professions aren't all that different. "In football you're a piece of meat and in acting you're a piece of meat," Dean said.

SUPERMAN WAS A BUFFALO BILL: Dean Cain.

Q How does Bill Clinton's brother Roger get along with his bossy sister-in-law Hillary? Are they friends?
— Paula V., Orlando, Fla.

A They used to have a formal, cold relationship, but since Roger's straightened out his longtime problem with booze, things have thawed a bit. Recently Roger got all emotional during an inspirational speech while describing a conversation with the First Lady.

"She called direct, not with the White House operator or anything! But right through to me. And here's the great thing — she called me for no reason! Hillary has never ever called me for no reason. In all these years I can count on both hands the times Hillary's called me at all and here she was callin' to say I love you and I am proud of how you handle being First Brother and how you represent the family. Oh boy, I'll tell you I cried like a baby. I was cryin' and running around the house sayin' 'Hillary called me! Hillary called me!' "

Q It's been a month or so since man-crazy Julia Roberts dumped her last lover, whoever that was. Who is she trying to romance these days?
— Sylvi C., Burlington, Vt.

A A close friend says the romantic Miss Roberts is hot to trot with sexy Brad Pitt, who might be the next stud in her stable. Brad's upcoming marriage to sexy Gwenyth Paltrow could be in danger because Julia usually gets what she wants, says the pal.

MAN-CRAZY! Julia Roberts.

Q Is it true that Keith Richards flipped out so bad when he heard his friend John Lennon had been shot that he had to be put in a straitjacket?
— John P., Ocala, Fla.

A Not exactly. What the Rolling Stones guitarist did do that terrible night in 1980 is grab his gun and go looking for the killer. "I was just down the road when he got blown away, man," Richards recalled recently. "You know, I was like running up the road with my shooter going, 'I'll get the (expletive)!' John was a good friend of mine. I miss him."

FLIPPED OUT!! Keith Richards.

I looked up my family tree . . . turns out they were sitting it.
— Rodney Dangerfield

Remember when . . .

The year was 1958 and Chuck Connors rode the range as The Rifleman, an Old West homesteader named Lucas McCain who struggled to make a living as a rancher while helping the local sheriff bag every bad guy in sight. Connors kept the desperadoes in line with the help of his trick rifle, a Winchester equipped with a large ring that cocked it as he drew, allowing him to fire off his first round in three-tenths of a second. The popular series played on ABC from 1958 through 1963.

How to find the job you want — in just 30 days!

By ROB CUNNINGHAM / Weekly World News

Landing the job you want can be hard work. But you can make your employment dream come true in just 30 days by following an expert's simple plan.

"The important thing to remember is that companies don't hire people. People hire people," says Wendy Siehling, author of How to Get the Job You Want in 30 Days.

"The key is getting to know people in your field or in the companies you want to work for."

That will let you tap into what Wendy calls "the hidden job market" — opportunities you'll never see in the classified ads.

"Even if you call a firm's personnel department, they'll often say there are no jobs when, in reality, there are. The personnel department doesn't know about all of the openings," notes Wendy.

The first thing to do is make a list of people who could help you — friends, old bosses, your hairdresser, your doctor, your neighbors. Look beyond what that person can do for you directly.

Think instead about the people that person may know who can assist you in finding a job.

Then call or visit the people on your list and ask whether they know anyone who works in your field of expertise or at a particular firm you'd like to work for. If they do, ask if you may call that person and use your contact's name as a reference.

Next, get in touch with those referrals, preferably by phone. Remember to be polite, charming and professional. But most importantly, make it clear you're just asking for advice — not a job.

Introduce yourself and say, "So-and-so suggested I contact you. I'm not calling to ask you for a job but I'd be very appreciative if you'd review my resume and suggest a few people I can contact for advice in my job search."

People are more than willing to share information in this way because it makes them feel important and helpful.

"Then write a good resume," says Wendy. "Keep it to one page if possible and highlight the experience that would be pertinent to the person you're sending it to. You may need to change it for each person you contact.

"Finally, keep careful track of the contacts you've made and call them back every now and then. The idea is to make sure you're in that person's mind when there is a job opening."

MEN GET HEART ATTACKS ON PURPOSE

TAKE IT EASY! Men intentionally drive themselves to heart attacks — so they can get some rest, a new study reveals.

. . . as an excuse to rest, new research proves!

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Each year thousands of men are giving themselves a foolproof excuse to slow down and rest without feeling guilty: They're purposely having heart attacks!

Noted psychiatrist Dr. Rolf Strom studied 1,257 men who had heart attacks. He concluded that many men drive themselves ruthlessly, not allowing themselves a moment's peace. Their subconscious minds won't let them

I've noticed a certain personality profile common to many males who suffer coronary disease," said Dr. Strom.

"In the medical profession, they've been described as 'Type A' people. They work themselves without mercy, trying to accomplish more and provides them with the only acceptable reason to rest."

Ingmar Wilk, 33, agrees with Dr. Strom. "I know it sounds odd, but when I had my heart attack it was almost a relief," he says from his bed in the IC unit of Stockholm City Hospital.

"I never realized it before but, looking back, I remember having fantasies of being sick so I could be free of all the pressure I put on myself. I know there are plenty of other men like me out there, guys who feel like there aren't gestions to men who feel they may be driving themselves too hard and risking a heart attack:

- Start each day by promising yourself that you'll work only so many hours and no more. When the time is up — STOP WORK and relax.
- Set aside at least half an hour each day to do something you enjoy that has no "payoff" — something that gives you pleasure but doesn't help you "accomplish" anything. Listen to classical music, read poetry, go for a leisurely walk in a beautiful area.
- Meditate. Prayer and meditation have proven beneficial effects on the body. It doesn't matter what kind of God you pray to or what kind of meditation you use as long as it calms you down.
- Eat your meals slowly and savor every bite. Your digestive system will thank you and so will your heart.

The worst mistake a businessman can make!

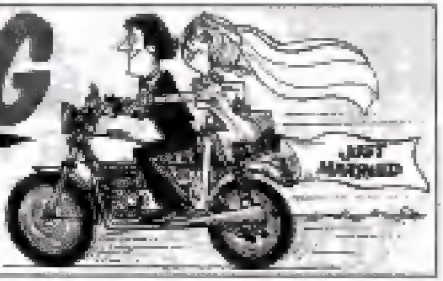
How to add ZING to your marriage



You can strengthen your marriage in just 30 minutes a day, says an expert — who gives surefire tips.

"A husband and wife can build the foundation for intimacy, affection and long-lasting happiness in only a half hour daily," declares psychologist Paul Coleman.

"A common problem for many couples is not paying enough attention to the marriage itself — it's easy to get caught up in the day-to-day hassles of ordinary life, such as troubles at work or trying times with the kids.

"This special half hour focuses on just the two of you and brings you back in touch with each other. After only a week, you'll notice a renewed sense of energy and excitement in your marriage."

Dr. Coleman, author of The 30 Secrets of Happily Married Couples, made these suggestions on how you should spend the precious relationship-building 30 minutes:

PAMPER EACH OTHER — Give one another a soothing back rub, using scented oil for extra pleasure. A husband may enjoy brushing his wife's hair, or she may want to treat him to a foot massage or a manicure.

DO SOMETHING FUN — Put on a favorite song and dance your hearts out. Play Monopoly or an old-fashioned card game.

CUDDLE UP ON THE COUCH — If you're in a sentimental mood, reread your old love letters or flip through old photos together. Whisper erotic fantasies in each other's ears — or simply hug and hold your mate while you listen to music.

START A HOBBY — Find an activity that fascinates you both, anything from ballroom dancing to photography. Then a couple of times a week spend a half hour working on your hobby together.

HAVE A HEART-TO-HEART TALK — By regularly opening up and discussing the important things in life — your dreams, hopes and plans for the future — you can maintain a deep and lasting bond.

If you give your husband enough rope, he'll be tied up at the office.

Experts say happy bees will save us from killer bees!

DALLAS — Genetic engineers have developed an exciting new weapon in America's war on dangerous killer bees — "happy bees!"

Described by one expert as being "extremely passive and pet-like," happy bees will be released into the wild to mix and breed with their more aggressive cousins.

If all goes well, happy and killer bees will blend into a new strain of even-tempered bees that will not pose any threat to humans.

DON'T LET YOUR KIDS EAT RAISINS

MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

MADONNA IS ONE HOT MAMA!

I'm madder than Roseanne with an empty pork chop platter that my favorite rock star Madonna is still getting flak for flashing a little bare skin all over creation.

Hey, at least Madonna is American-made and not some sleazy Brit like those stupid Beatles that I hated so much.

Let's face it. Madonna is the best girl singer since Patti Page did my all-time favorite Tennessee Waltz way back in the summer of '50.

But what makes me so pig boiling mad is that every time Madonna does a little shimmy and shake on the tube, all the old fuddy-duddies get so bent out of shape they have to take a couple of swigs out of the Geritol bottle.

I've been accused of being a lot of things, folks, but being an old stick-in-the-mud isn't one of 'em, by jiminy!

I've been a hep cat ever since I went to a dandy Four Freshmen concert in Cleveland.

Not only that, I've still got an original 45 of Ray Stevens belting out Ahab the A-rab back in '64 and Wooly Bully by Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs.

And Bob Lind's Elusive Butterfly of Love wasn't half bad either. Roger Miller's Dang Me' was tops, too — and I could go on and on.

But nowadays I love to watch Madonna strut her stuff. And I like her singing, too, by gum. That gal's got talent with a capital T.

And if all you old maid blue hairs out there have a problem with Madonna, cut off your hearing aids.

Yours truly has only one thing to say: "Let's boogie."

On the fruitcake front, thought you'd get a little kick out of this news brief. Seems a burglar in a large Midwestern city was caught in the act with three of his kids in tow while he broke into a house.

The cops asked why he would bring his kids along while committing a crime. "I just hate leaving them home alone," the nut case said.

"You know, you aren't even safe in your own home anymore."

She has the best set of pipes since Patti Page, says Ed

ED ANGER MADONNA POLL

☐ I AGREE with Ed that Madonna is the best girl singer in America since that singing rage Miss Patti Page.

☐ I DISAGREE with Ed and think the metal plate in his head is getting rusty. Madonna is the vilest piece of trash to ever hit the American airwaves.

Bad moods are contagious — you can catch 'em like colds!

By WILLIAM BURKLEY / Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — Dramatic new research proves it beyond the shadow of a doubt: Bad moods are caused by a germ — and they're as contagious as colds!

To avoid catching one you're well advised to stay away from people who've got the blues or to wash your hands thoroughly after contact with one.

But if you catch the bad-mood germ anyway, you can relieve the symptoms and get happy fast with these great tips from the experts:

• Remind yourself to be upbeat and cheerful. If you are down in the dumps, tell yourself, "I may be depressed but that doesn't mean I have to be." Lift yourself out of the pit of depression by remembering how good it feels to be happy.

• Avoid glum individuals. Eat lunch with someone who's in a good mood. Taking a walk alone in the sunshine is a good antidote after exposure to the "bad mood" germ.

• Plan ahead. If you're visiting your family and you always have a fight with a certain relative, map out an escape route. Be sure to schedule plenty of breaks for yourself.

• Resolve to avoid any unpleasantness — and say so. If someone makes a remark to make you angry, just laugh it off. Then tell them, "I'm here to enjoy myself. Let's both make an effort to do that."

• Seek out upbeat people and spend time with them. Their happiness and contentment will lift your spirits. Let their good mood spread to you.

• Understand that having bad moods is a part of life. Just because you have the blues one day is no reason for your whole week to be ruined.

Campers set up tent in WRONG place — a 'war zone!'

RODEZ, France — Unsuspecting campers Roger Amaury and his wife Jeanne nearly jumped out of their skin when they heard the crackle of gunfire outside their tent — and saw dozens of heavily armed soldiers charging them from the brush!

Rattled Roger, clad in pajamas, leaped from the couple's tent waving a hammer — and was greeted by a chorus of laughter from the invading troops.

It turned out the couple had unwittingly pitched their tent on an army exercise ground while soldiers were on night maneuvers.

This is what my unique vitamin formula has done for my hair at 50...

Why not find out what it can do for yours...by accepting the first full month's supply of it, FREE, plus 2 other FREE GIFTS for you!

You See, If You Have Problem Hair, Read This—At 50, I Have To Cut 2 Inches Off My Hair Every Two Months. Otherwise, It Might Very Well Grow Right Down Past My Waist.

And not only have I developed a special Hair Vitamin formula that helps make it that way, but I'd like to give you your first full month's supply as my Free Gift.

The full details are below . . .

I've included this absolutely unretouched photograph of my own hair, taken when I was 50 years and 31 days old. I had that hair photographed from every angle, so you could see almost every strand of this hair clearly.

Now I'd like you to look at this unretouched photograph carefully—so carefully that if you have a magnifying glass handy, use it, too. And ask yourself these three questions:

1. Is my hair the lifeless, brittle, thinning hair you'd expect in a 50-year-old woman? Especially a 50-year-old woman who is far too busy to eat the proper diet she should, every day.

2. Does this hair have the kind of shine, the kind of thickness, the kind of life and strength you'd like your own hair to have today—no matter what your age?

3. And now study the length of that hair. Realize that it would grow down past my waist, if I didn't cut two inches off it every two months. For too many 22-year olds can't get this kind of growth, because they don't know how to give their hair this kind of vitality. And if you're willing to spend one short minute—at my risk, and not yours—to see if my vitamins can help your hair look like mine . . . grow like mine . . . shine like mine—during the next short few days, you may be too busy to feed your body, and your hair, the absolutely proper nutrients it should have—then just read on.

And To Prove The Power Of These Facts, I Have To Tell You Just A Little More About My Own Hair Right Now . . .

First of all, because of my photographic assignments, I now have the best regular 31 modern body. And it's still so thick and so strong that I constantly have to cut it to keep me from looking fat and shaggy. And, when I did a TV commercial for a leading hair company, the producer asked one of the staff to lightly pat thenperoxide on it, so it wouldn't blind the camera.

Second, and even more important, even at 50, beauty is my business. I sell the way I look, as a model and as a beauty expert. And as I myself grow older and older, more and more women begin to believe the splendid message—that you can help make yourself beautiful, and keep yourself beautiful, despite any number of years! And you can do that despite the fact that you're as much "on the run"—whether as housewife, mother, or working woman, or all three—that you don't have time to give yourself the "Full-Power" nutrition you'd like your skin to have, every single day.

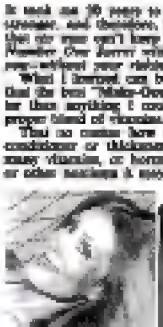
Nowhere, but nowhere, does this "Make-Good Nutrition" hold more true than with your hair. For you must realize that I have had a two-pronged hatred for over 30 years—that I both bleach and color my hair—that I often don't sleep, day after day, for a proper amount of hours—and my hair STILL looks like this.

So Let Me Put It As Bluntly As This—

It took me 20 years to find out how to make my hair thicker, stronger, and therefore, longer. With each shocking life and color that my hair can't keep its hands off it. And I'd like to share my Number One Secret with you—prove that Number One Secret to you—without your risking a penny.

What I learned can be boiled down as simply as this. I found that the best "Make-Over" Hair Treatment in the world—far better than anything I could conceivably PUT on that hair—is the proper blend of vitamins and minerals. For one very simple reason.

That no matter how much money I spend for a shampoo or conditioner or thickener to put ON my hair . . . no matter how many vitamins, or hormones, or enzymes, or other strengtheners or other nutrients I may have—my hair still can't digest. Only my stomach can. And therefore the only way I can feed my scalp and my hair—really feed that scalp and hair—is through my mouth.



MENU EVERYTHING I SAY HERE APPLIES TO MEN, TOO! JUST USE THE LITTLE WORD—

If you have falling or thinning hair, then you could be right that if your hair loss is not due to hereditary causes, but is, instead, directly attributable to vitamin deficiencies . . . then the very same hair may literally THRIVE when more vitamin deficiencies are finally corrected.

And This Is Vital If You're Over 29.

And not only does your hair need so many more vitamins and minerals as it gets older, but also the ordinary, over-processed, over-cooked foods you buy give you an incredibly little of those precious nutrients.

And certain foods you eat, and certain beverages you drink, actually destroy the vital B-complex vitamins that are so crucial for the nutrition of your hair. So if your hair is aging, and fading, as fast, or even faster, than your neighbor's—don't blame heredity. Blame the old-fashioned way you feed it overnight.

And, worst of all, if you work, you hurry, as I do, and eat the wrong kinds of food, as I do, and neglect your diet, as I do. Then those hair vitamins may be the best beauty investment of your life.

When I think of the mistakes I made through sheer ignorance—that literally resulted in the weakening of my hair—why, I could almost cry. And I must share with you now, my unique way to help stop what I call "vitamin-deficiency premature-aging of your hair."

Vitamin and mineral supplements are the answer, of course. But the question was, until lately, which ones? I still shudder when I think of my bathroom shelf in the early days. It was lined with bottles.

Sometimes I Would Take 15 Or 20 Pills Each Day, Just To Get The Full List Of Nutrients That I Needed To Do The Job.

And then I started thinking about a new, combined "Hair Vitamin" that contained all the ingredients that I thought that I couldn't afford to let my hair live without . . . and that any other woman who was far too busy to use the proper attention to her diet just couldn't afford to let her hair live without.

There are vitamins that are essential for the health and strength of your entire body, including your hair . . . plus vitamins that help produce a supply of rich nourishing blood to your entire body, including your hair . . . plus minerals and even "trace elements" that are necessary for nutrition and researchers to be essential to a sound, healthy body, including your hair.

And when I vacillated down all these vitamins, and minerals, and trace elements, and added them to my formula, my hair took on such a radiance and glow—that even at age 50—photos of me appear in newspapers and magazines all over America.

OLEDA — age 50
My hair is as strong & healthy as ever!

Meet the woman who is giving you this INCREDIBLE $19.86 in FREE GIFTS!

This is OLEDA BAKER—High fashion model, beauty-health authority, consultant, TV-radio personality, mother, and president of Oleda Baker Products, Inc. It's hard to believe her age and her youthful head of hair. She believes "Every Woman Has The Right To Be Beautiful." She wants you to try her Forever Young product for your hair.

And Your First Month's Supply Is My FREE Gift.

You see, my special Hair Vitamins cost $9.95 for a 30-day supply . . . far less than the price I had to pay, and you'd have to pay, if you bought them separately. But if you send me your check for them now, I'll send you—not just a one-month's supply—but THREE bottles, containing THREE one-month supplies.

What I want you to do is this: Take one of the jars, open it, and use it. Put the other two aside.

Then take them for the first month. And if you don't see the results that delight you, in that very first month alone, then simply take the other two jars, and send them back to me, and I'll send back every penny of your money.

So if you don't like them, the first jar is yours free. And if you do like them, that first jar is still yours free. So you've got absolutely nothing to lose—and so very, very much to gain.

DAY-CARE CENTER HOLDING KIDS HOSTAGE

BABY BOUNTY! Parents who don't pay their bills at a day-care center aren't getting their children back.

. . . until parents pay their past-due tuition!

LISBON, Portugal — A city day-care center has taken drastic measures against parents who don't pay their bills: They're holding their children hostage until they make good on what they owe.

And incredibly, the government-run center has the support of the state courts, which recently ruled that the facility was in fact supporting the children and therefore should have custody.

By LILA SCHVANDT
Weekly World News

"This is the most outrageous instance of day-care abuse that I've ever heard of," said angry Luisa Lopes Gomes, head of Parents for Adequate Day-Care.

"You simply can't hold innocent children for ransom — even if it's legal.

"They're keeping 15 little boys and girls away from their moms and dads. That's inhumane," Mrs. Gomes said. "Imagine what it's doing to them psychologically."

According to press accounts, the Lisbon Loving Day-Care Center announced several weeks ago that they would be taking serious action against parents who did not pay up their bills.

The facility set a deadline for payment, but a number of parents were unable to meet their obligations by that date.

On July 1, unsuspecting parents who were behind in their bills brought their kids in in the morning — and officials of the day care center promptly took them away.

When they came to pick the little ones up they were told by day-care employees that the children would be returned only when the bills were paid.

"They're telling the parents that if the bills aren't paid in full within 90 days, the kids will become wards of the state," Mrs. Gomes said.

"This situation has gotten totally out of control. And when we took them to court and sued to get the children back, the judge supported the day-care center. I can't believe something like this could happen."

Mrs. Gomes says she and her group are currently raising money to bail out the children — who range in age from 7 months to 4 years — and to bring a suit before the country's supreme court.

"We want to outlaw this terrible practice before some parents lose their children altogether," Mrs. Gomes says. "We don't want families broken up just because they're having financial difficulties."

Find out if your Mr. Right is really an ex-con or a liar!

Attention, ladies: You can make sure Mr. Right is telling the truth about himself — or discover if he's really Mr. Wrong — by following some tips from a top private eye.

"Women's chances of being battered, ripped off or married to a liar and a bigamist have soared during the past 10 years," declared investigator Joe Culligan, author of When in Doubt, Check Him Out: A Woman's Survival Guide for the '90s.

Fortunately, you can find out a lot about a man before you become heavily involved. Here's how to find out some important information he might not be willing to tell you:

● Has he ever been in jail?

For federal prison, simply call the Federal Bureau of Prisons at (202) 307-3126. You should have his full name, date of birth and Social Security number. Locally, check with your county clerk of courts. They keep a list of names, criminal charges and current status of each case.

● Has he been married? Is he divorced? Was he abusive?

Write to the State Division of Driver's Licenses and ask for the birth date given on his license. You can also get this information from the automobile registration division of the or visit the county hall of records. Using his name and date of birth, you can find out the name of any previous spouse, names and birth dates of children, what assets he had and what happened to them.

The records will also show any accusations of abuse.

● Did he lie about his age?

Write to the State Division of Vital Statistics in the capital of his home state and ask for a copy of his birth certificate.

● Is he paying any child support?

Contact your state's Child Support Enforcement (CSE) office. Even if he's wanted in another state, your state's CSE office will be able to find out.

● Did he really graduate from college?

This is one of the most common areas where lies are told. To check him, write his college for "directory information." Al-

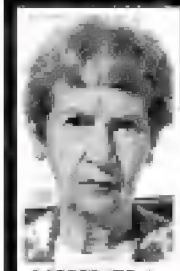
Pot-bellied pig is making my life a living hell!



DESPERATE in Memphis.

Dear Dotti: Ever since my husband brought home a pot-bellied pig our lives have been hell. The stupid thing was supposed to get no bigger than a poodle. But it's already the size of St. Bernard — and the damn thing is still growing.

It runs around the house like it owns the place and when it's on the move, the whole place shakes. It grunts and snorts and eats and eats and eats. We're retirees living on a fixed income, Dotti, and I'm not kidding when I say the thing is taking food out of OUR mouths. My husband won't part with the pig — and it's making my life a living hell!

What should I do? — Desperate in Memphis

Dear Desperate: If you can't control your man at this late date you're obviously beyond help. With that in mind, I advise you to get off your high horse — and let BOTH of your pigs live in peace!

Is the world really going to end in 1999?

Dear Dotti: Everywhere I go people are talking about the end of the world and the Battle of Armageddon. To hear them tell it, life as we know it will end in 1999 or the year 2000 for sure. I've never been a religious fanatic or anything like that, but I do believe in God and study my Bible. And for the life of me I can't find all these biblical passages that say the world is going to end during our lifetime. Sometimes I don't know what to think. What about you, Dotti? Do you think the world is coming to an end? — Fretting in Inwood

Dear Fretting: I don't think the world is coming to an end, I know it's coming to an end — on October 12, 1999 to be exact!

My pals are getting sex changes — why can't I?

Dear Dotti: All my friends are lining up to get sex changes and I want one, too. Unfortunately, my dad is 48-year-old geezer and he refuses to pay for the operation until I turn 21. I'm 15 now and that's three long years away. I think he's being totally unreasonable, Dotti. How about you? — Anxious in Tyler

Dear Anxious: I agree with you a doctor — he'd drag your butt to a shrink faster than you can say Dear Dotti!

CONFIDENTIALS

Dear Devastated in Cranston: The next time somebody offers you a penny for your thoughts, pinhead, don't take off your dress!

Dear Wondering in Birmingham: Don't be a fool. If you found feminine spray in your husband's glove compartment, he's got a woman on the side!

Dear Feuding in Syracuse: I can't really help you with your situation but I will say this: The last time I feuded with my brother somebody jumped him in a parking lot. We never found out who beat the crap out of Bobby — but suffice it to say, he's treated me like peaches and cream ever since!

Dear Disappointed in Montreal: That's yet another reason to "test drive" a man for a year or two before you tie the knot!

Dear Excited in Virginia Beach: To tell you the truth, I've never had any desire to rub motor oil on my butt!

Dear Eligible Bachelor in Reno: I don't care how much money you've got. At the age of 93, "eligible" you ain't!

Dear Desperate in Four Corners: If you're that hard up for a love letter, pinhead, write one to yourself!

Was I wrong to use the boss's toothbrush?

REMORSEFUL in Kansas City.

Dear Dotti: My boss invited me to her home for a dinner party a few months ago and while I was there, I did something that's still tormenting me to this day. It all started when I excused myself to go to the restroom after dinner. Seeing her toothbrush, I got the urge to brush my teeth. And since I didn't have one with me, I went ahead and used hers. I didn't think all that much about it until a few weeks had passed. Since then it has become an obsession — and I find myself loathing myself and my behavior all the time. Should I tell the boss I used her toothbrush? Do you think

Tell me the truth, Dotti: Do you think I'm pretty?

JACKIE C. in Dover.

Dear Dotti: Do you think I'm pretty? My girlfriends say I am. But all the boys say I'm ugly and they must mean it, because I've never had a date. I know you'll tell me the truth, Dotti, because you're not afraid to say anything to anyone. So please give it to me straight. I can take the truth — even if it hurts. If it helps, I'm 17. — Jackie C. in Dover

Dear Jackie: Let me tell you what my daddy told me when I was a pimply-faced teenager like you: Beauty is in the eyes of the beholder, and if the beholder doesn't like the way you look, then kick him where it hurts!

My psychic powers are driving me insane!

Dear Dotti: I'm a psychic and I'm going crazy. I'm constantly bombarded with visions of tragedies that are going to occur in the future. I've been in a car accident and let me tell you, my powers are a curse. I know who's calling me on the phone before I even answer it — and the morning newspaper is ancient history for me because I already know what's happening before I bother to read it. When I walk down the street, I know what strangers are thinking. The worst thing is sometimes I get terrible visions of tragedies that are going to occur in their future. I've spoken to a psychiatrist and he wants me to undergo counseling so I can learn how to cope. But I'm not a rich woman, and I simply can't afford it. Can you help me, Dotti? — Clairvoyant in Lincoln

Dear Clairvoyant: If you're such a hot shot psychic, why don't you win yourself a big lottery jackpot — and buy all the therapy you want? The fact is, you're insane — and the shrink you talked to knows it!

planet has used somebody else's toothbrush and survey after survey proves it. The bottom line? You were just being human. And there's no need to worry about it!

How sweet it is! Sugar is NOT bad for you

MYTHS AND FACTS ABOUT NUTRITION

Don't believe the health fanatics who say sugar is bad for you — because that's just one of several beliefs about eating right that's flat-out wrong, declares a nutrition expert.

By JENNIFER BROOKES
Weekly World News

"Sugar makes eating a pleasure," said Dr. Fredrick Stare, a nationally known nutrition expert. "It's not bad for you."

The key is simply to eat sweets in moderation and avoid sticky sweets, which can cause dental decay.

Here are other myths about healthy eating — and the facts from Dr. Stare:

MYTH: Organically grown foods are more nutritious.

FACT: "That's baloney!" Dr. Stare said. The nutritional content of fruits and vegetables is the same no matter how they're grown. They're healthy and an important part of everyone's diet.

MYTH: Oat bran is the best food to lower your cholesterol.

FACT: Cooked dried beans are actually better. And barley, fruits and vegetables are just as good as oat bran.

MYTH: Breakfast is the most important meal of the day.

FACT: Not so. "Eating breakfast gives you a little more energy for the first part of the morning, but breakfast is no more important than any other meal," said Dr. Stare. "The most important thing is to get the vitamins and minerals you need by eating from different food groups over the course of the day."

MYTH: You should skip snacks and eat only three good meals a day.

FACT: It's actually better to eat five or six small healthy meals. What's more, people who have a weight problem generally consume fewer calories if they consume several small meals each day rather than three squares.

You'll NEVER guess why animal nuts want to drop speed limit!

PARIS — Crackpot animal lovers are campaigning for a 15 m.p.h. speed limit throughout France — "to stop the senseless splattering of insects on car windshields and grilles!"

"God's creatures — including mosquitoes, flies, lovebugs, wasps, bees and countless other helpless insects — are being slaughtered by the billions on our highways," said outraged Alain Guilhot, president of Animals Forever.

"And the only way to stop the holocaust is to force manics drivers to slow down."

Guilhot and his organization have petitioned the French parliament to enact a nationwide 15 m.p.h. speed limit to take effect immediately.

A woman smart enough to ask a man's advice is usually not dumb enough to take it.

Supercharge yourself by day . . . sleep like a baby at night

It's easy to get a good night's rest and keep going strong throughout the day.

"Following a few tips can improve the quality of your sleep and also boost your energy," says Dr. Linda Van Horn, a top expert on preventive medicine. She says:

HERE'S HOW!

● Always have breakfast, but you should avoid sugary foods. They give you a quick boost, but your energy level will drop within two hours. Instead, rev up your system with a breakfast that contains protein.

● For lunch, eat high-protein foods such as skinless poultry or fish and complex carbohydrates such as pasta and vegetables.

● Consume most of your calories during breakfast and lunch.

"We really need to take in the calories when we're going to use them," explained Dr. Van Horn. "People who decrease the size of their meals as the day goes on find they sleep better, wake up with more energy and feel better."

● Feel free to have a cup of caffeinated coffee to get yourself going in the morning. But more than three cups is too much. And if you overindulge, you'll start needing more and more caffeine to maintain your energy.

● Don't eat sugary snacks and refined breads during the day.

These stimulate the release of a brain chemical that will make you sleepy. But on the other hand, if you're looking for a bedtime snack, try milk, bread, cereal, crackers or rice cakes. These will trigger production of a calming brain chemical.

● Try a 20-minute nap if your batteries need charging. But don't sleep any longer than that because long naps can make you feel groggy, rather than refreshed.

● Stick to a regular bedtime — even on weekends. Starting this habit will help you drop off to sleep faster and sleep better.

● Don't eat or drink a lot before bedtime. If you feel too full, you'll have a heck of a time sleeping.

And drinking too much could force you to interrupt your sleep with frequent trips to the bathroom.

● If you're feeling sleep-deprived, try sacking out an hour early if possible, then sleep until you awaken naturally.

● Don't use your bedroom as a work space. If you make this mistake, you'll find yourself focusing on your work as you try to fall asleep and could end up tense, thinking about the things you have to do.

CON TURNS PRISON RACE INTO QUICK GETAWAY!

MUNICH, Germany — Fit-as-a-fiddle penitentiary inmate Dieter Linke was allowed out of prison to run in a 16-mile cross-country race — and hasn't been seen since! The fleet-footed, 24-year-old forger was accompanied by a guard — but he simply outran him and vanished from sight within minutes.

Most women lie like dogs... when it comes to their age!

Ladies, be honest now — do you lie about your age?

If you do, you're not alone. In a new survey, a whopping 76 percent of women polled admitted they fib about their age.

In Boston, Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas and Philadelphia, 100 women over 40 were interviewed — and the results were that subtracting birthdays is as American as apple pie.

"Sure, I fib about my age," admitted Boston retiree Norma Hawkins, 65. "My grandchildren think I'm 29."

Brenda Savage, a 46-year-old Dallas manager, chuckled: "Shoot, yeah! I've been lying about my age since I was a kid.

"When I was young, I told people I was older. Now, if the need arises, I tell them I'm younger."

Chicago retiree Stephanie Vavrina, 75, declared: "Show me someone who says they don't — and I'll show you a liar!"

Dallas hairdresser Nola K. Swen, 48, said: "When I was 23 I liked the number so much that I stayed 35 for two years."

Retired Elva Cudmell, 75, of Philadelphia said: "At the senior citizens' dance, I tell men I'm 10 years younger — and they believe me!"

But not every woman covers up her age.

"I tell the truth about my age," said Sharon Berman, a 36-year-old Los Angeles file clerk.

Dallas hairdresser Peggy LaRue, 46, noted: "There are a lot of things you can change. But your age is not one of them."

And Boston's Mabel Leo-

Parents say the darndest things about their kids

Over the years, people have said or written some clever and outrageous things about raising youngsters.

Here's a sampler from the blockbuster book, The Funny Side of Parenthood.

TAKING sweets from a baby is not easy, says Henny Youngman.

"Never raise your hand to your children; it leaves your midsection unprotected."
— Robert Orben

"Children today are tyrants. They contradict their parents, gobble their food and tyrannize their teachers."
— Socrates

"If evolution really works, how come mothers only have two hands?"
— Milton Berle

"A child is someone who stands halfway between an adult and a TV set."
— Anonymous

"If you think it's easy to take candy from a baby — you should try it."
— Henny Youngman

"Any kid will run an errand for you if you ask at bedtime."
— Red Skelton

"When I was a kid my parents moved a lot — but I always found them."
— Rodney Dangerfield

"You feel completely comfortable entrusting your baby to Grandma and Grandpa for long periods, which is why most grandparents flee to Florida at the earliest opportunity."
— Dave Barry

"Have children while your parents are still young enough to take care of them."
— Rita Rudner

"The thing that impresses me most about America is the way parents obey their children."
— King Edward VIII

"When my kids become wild and unruly, I use a nice safe playpen. When they're finished, I climb out."
— Erma Bombeck

KIDS will always run errands if asked at bedtime, says Red Skelton.

Marriage is proof that people can take a joke.

Your bubbly spirit will win admiration and affection from all.

TAURUS
Apr. 20 – May 20

Someone you crossed last year is planning revenge this week and you'll need eyes in the back of your head to stop them.

You are not in physical danger but your pride and ego could be in for a bruising. When it comes, don't forget who started it.

A loved one gets good news in the mail and their joy is contagious. Join in the celebration.

GEMINI
May 21 – June 20

Kind words from an unexpected source this week will delight you and heal old wounds.

Don't make any decisions about your future for the next seven days. This is a bad time for planning ahead.

You will spread smiles everywhere you go this week. It's a lovely time to throw a party or invite friends over.

Money matters are on hold but will get better soon.

CANCER
June 21 – July 22

A recent money crunch will be over this week. Do-it-yourself projects are good ways to save cash.

You will be ruled this week by the romantic you that cherishes moonlight and music and loving. Surrender to the urge.

It's nice to have someone to turn to in times of doubt. But don't neglect your own instincts, especially in matters of the heart.

LEO
July 23 – Aug. 22

Unburden yourself this week by confiding some of your pressing problems to a close friend. Then stop worrying and have some fun for a change.

Something you have lost may come back to you in the next week or two. And a loved one who has been troubled will find peace of mind.

This is not a good week to rock the boat.

VIRGO
Aug. 23 – Sept. 22

A close friend or relative may give you unsolicited advice this week about your personality, lifestyle or finances that may be worth listening to. Listen up. They mean well.

This could be the time for financial investment.

The situation looks good for a little careful speculation. But keep something back for a rainy day.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 – Oct. 22

This should be the beginning of a long period of robust health. Get out and enjoy the good life this week.

The week ahead is perhaps the best time of the entire year for planning new projects.

If you are married, tread carefully where your mate's feelings are concerned. Your stubborn determination is admirable but may be difficult for your loved one to understand.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 – Nov. 21

You've been working overtime for everybody and his brother and your efforts are about to pay off in a big way this week.

Expect family members to show more respect for you at home.

A friend or neighbor has your best interests at heart even if it doesn't seem like it. Trust this person with your life — or your money — you'll be glad you did!

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 – Dec. 21

That special project you've been working on is within reach for the first time this week — but you've got to reach out and ask for some help — especially financial help.

Don't let your own insecurity keep you from realizing the chance of a lifetime.

Something large and shiny brings you good luck. Watch for it late in the week.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 – Jan. 19

A terrific financial opportunity may be coming your way this week and you should be prepared to take full advantage of it. Get advice from experts if necessary.

An old flame is interested in rekindling the relationship you once shared.

Go for it and remember: don't forget what went wrong the first time around so you won't mess up again.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 – Feb. 18

Don't be afraid to gamble a few hours of your time and a small chunk of your money this week on a unique opportunity that may make you financially comfortable for life.

You may be in for a big surprise this week if you happen to be at home at the right time.

Don't be so laid back and nice to people. Some people don't appreciate a person like you.

PISCES
Feb. 19 – Mar. 20

A golden opportunity is coming your way this week. Seek advice from knowledgeable friends. Don't be afraid to gamble!

A member of the opposite sex is attracted to you. Why not break the ice with a few encouraging words?

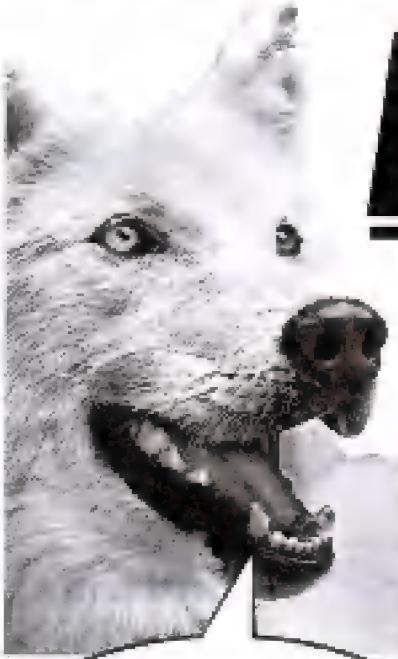
Teach your dog how to talk



HAVE YOU SEEN THAT STUPID TALKING PIG MOVIE YET?

Anyone can do it with my 4-point program, says expert!

By ANN VICTORIA
Weekly World News

BOSTON — Dog trainer Martha Kellser has taught her dog to say more than 15 words — and to even speak phrases like "How you?" and "God bless."

And although the clarity of the dog's speech doesn't quite match that of talking birds like parrots and parakeets, veterinary experts confirm that the words are "perfectly understandable." Even more incredible, Martha says that Susie, the 9-month-old puppy, is not unique.

MARTHA KEILSER

She says you can do the same with your own dog with a little patience and know-how! "I believe any dog of average intelligence can learn to gab up a storm," says the cheerful, good-natured animal behavior expert who has owned several obedience schools over her 15-year career.

"The only reason talking dogs are rarely seen is that few dog-owners really believe their pets can master the skill."

The renowned 41-year-old author and lecturer offers this 4-point program to teach your own pup a vocabulary of basic words:

1. The absolute most important quality you need is kindness. This is true in all dog training, but it's especially true in teaching speech. You must never use punishments or harsh words no matter what — only approval and praise.

2. Start by urging your pup to make basic sounds with the vocal chords. Sit in front of him or her, smile and make dog sounds yourself — the whining yawn, the playful growl, the half-bark. Use all the sounds you've heard dogs make. By doing this you're showing your pet two things: First, you're showing him that vocal sounds are important. And second, you're teaching him to imitate. Whenever he makes a sound, give him a doggie biscuit and a hug.

3. When he's able to make the sounds on cue, sit with him and form the words you want him to say. Exaggerate the words, saying them slowly. Let him see you form your mouth around them. Dogs' mouths are structured differently than those of humans, but by watching you they can see that the tongue and lips are important.

4. When he does learn, always reinforce the behavior often with food and love. Remember not to rush things. Some dogs learn

Dad pulls off on side of road and cuts son's head off

ESTANCIA, N.M. — Dozens of shocked motorists whizzing along a busy interstate couldn't believe the bloody horror they saw at the side of the road — a berserk father hacking off his teenage son's head.

By the time cops were alerted to the attack, Eric Smith had stabbed his 14-year-old son, Eric Jr., dozens of times and roared away in his van — taking the severed head with him, Torrance County Sheriff Don Lyles said.

"He thought his family was possessed by the Devil, so he had to kill him," Sheriff Lyles added. "I'm sure his 13-year-old son, Larry, would have been the next to die if we hadn't intercepted."

By JACK ALEXANDER
Weekly World News

With police and deputies in hot pursuit, Smith, 34, flung the head out the window and of more than 100 m.p.h. before he blew a tire and crashed.

Smith was jailed without bond on charges of murder, evidence tampering, child abuse, driving while intoxicated and resisting or obstructing an officer.

found his terrified son, Larry, hiding in bushes along the interstate. "Did you get my dad? He's not going to get me, is he?" the frightened boy asked. The sheriff assured him he was safe.

Cops later retrieved Larry's brother's head from the side of the highway and found the rest of Eric's bloody body sprawled across the shoulder of the road where the horror began.

"We have witnesses who saw him hacking at the boy's head," Sheriff Lyles said. "There were 29 stab wounds in his back, but the ones in front I didn't count.

"I only hope the boy was dead grandfather in Mesa, Ariz., had been visiting their dad. They had not seen their mother in more than three years.

The terrible day began when Smith decided to take the boys fishing.

Somewhere along the way, Smith turned into a raving maniac, screamed that his family was possessed by the Devil and attacked his oldest son with the knife, the sheriff said. Before the attack turned deadly, the doomed older son begged his little brother to "get out of here while you still can." Larry told deputies he

Why is my Ouija board telling me to kill myself?

Dear Serena: I need your help immediately. My Ouija board is telling me to commit suicide — and I'm beginning to think I should do it.

My Ouija board has always been very nice to me and has helped me contact many of my dead relatives. But for the past three months it has been giving me some weird advice — like breaking up with my boyfriend and quitting my job. I have done all that but now it wants me to kill myself. This really scares me, Serena, because my Ouija is taking over my life. Please tell me what I should do — before it's too late. — Fearful in Los Angeles

Dear Fearful: Your Ouija board has been taken over by an evil spirit. I have arranged for a friendlier spirit to be your Ouija contact. Ignore your Ouija board for one week — and then the next time you use it you will get much better advice.

Dear Serena: I'm a 15-year-old girl who's been seeing a 19-year-old guy for about three months. I really like him but he does a lot of cocaine and refuses to quit, even though he promises me that he will. Please look into your crystal ball and tell me true, Serena. Will my boyfriend quit drugs? Do we have a future together? — Confused in Racine

Dear Confused: This young man of yours is headed for BIG trouble soon. You must stop seeing him immediately or you will end up getting in over your head!

Dear Serena: Somebody has been stealing hubcaps off the cars in our apartment complex. The police have tried to catch the culprit to no avail. We're at our wit's end. Can you provide any clues? — Desperate in Clover

Dear Desperate: I wish I could say otherwise, but you'll find most of the hubcaps under your son's bed.

Dear Serena: My husband and I are happily married and we have a beautiful 5-year-old son. My problem is I've gotten pregnant again and I'm afraid to have the baby because a psychic told me that one child would be a great source of pleasure to me but another would cause great heartache. Please tell me what to do. — Undecided in Santa Rosa

Dear Undecided: The baby you're carrying will become a great doctor if you allow it to come into this world. I know what I would do if I were you, but I'm not. This important decision is yours to make, not mine.

Dear Serena: Every single night I dream that I came from another planet. Is this really possible? If so, what planet did I come from — and when? — Curious in Antioch

Dear Curious: You didn't come to Earth from another planet, but you did live on another planet in one of your former lives. This world doesn't have a name because it has no intelligent life. You were just a single-celled animal when you lived there.

Dear Serena: Can you please tell me if I'm going to come into a large amount of money anytime soon? I desperately need cash to pay bills and buy my children clothes for the new school year. — Anxious in Bangor

Dear Anxious: My crystal ball tells me that you are indeed coming in to some money soon. Expect your surprise inheritance check next week. I know the $250,000 will come in handy!

HOW TO WIN BACK YOUR HUSBAND AFTER SOME HUSSY STEALS HIM!

7 tips to have him crawling back home in no time

A shocking 7 out of 10 husbands have had an affair — but you can win your man back, say two respected experts.

"And you can do it without losing self-respect," declared Betty Kelly.

She interviewed hundreds of psychologists, marriage counselors and couples for her new book, How To Get Him Back From the Other Woman: If You Want Him.

Here are seven tips that Kelly says can work for you:

By JASON MARSHALL
Weekly World News

● Decide whether you really do want him. An affair doesn't mean he's fallen out of love with you. A man can stray for many reasons which have nothing to do with his wife.

● Let him know you still love him. He might have turned to another woman because he thinks you don't care.

● Do not give him an ultimatum. Be patient. Time is on your side.

● Stay cool. Do not scream, throw pots or cry, because that could send him running to her.

● Make positive changes. One woman decided to learn fashion design and was so thrilled with her classes that she glowed with happiness. Her husband began to share her excitement and ditched the "other woman." What is more, his wife found an exciting career.

● Remind him of the good times. He may be trying to convince himself that your marriage is bad. But if you talk about the fun you used to have, he will admit you were happy together.

● Use sex appeal. Look your best and wear his favorite perfume when he is around. After all, he fell in love with you first. Now help him remember why.

"But do not sleep with him while she's in his life," advised Miss Kelly's co-author, Diane Baroni. "This will just prove how desperate you are. Instead, hold your head high, put your best self forward and hang in there.

"Odds are that you'll have your husband back — and the other woman will be history."

There is no pleasure in having nothing to do. The fun is having lots to do and not doing any of it.

Woman gets new hairdo — now dog won't let her in the house!

ORLEANS, France — A homeowner had to call police to get back into her own home after she got a frizzy new perm at the beauty parlor — and her German shepherd would not let her in!

Marianne Dumez, 35, said her dog Gateau charged her when she tried to open her front door and tore through a window screen trying to get at her.

Police brought a dog handler to control the animal and help the pooch get reacquainted with its owner.

"He didn't recognize me with my new hairdo," the pet owner said after her ordeal.

"But after a while he figured out who I was — and now we're friends again."

Dad searches 13 years for beloved daughter

. . . then accidentally runs over her!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

DETROIT, Mich. — Frantic dad Dillon Spach spent 13 heartbreaking years searching for his long-lost daughter LeeAnn and finally found the ill-fated 16-year-old — the day he accidentally killed her with his car!

"I'd devoted my life to looking for my little girl and I'd searched through seven countries without finding a trace of her," devastated Dillon later told reporters.

"I lost my wife, I lost my job, I lost everything I owned because I couldn't think of anything but finding LeeAnn. Then one day I rounded a curve and hit this poor girl with my car. I jumped out to help her, and the minute I saw her, I knew she was dead — and I knew that I'd finally found my little LeeAnn.

"I'd found her and killed her, all in one split second."

The rattled dad's heartbreaking tale began in February 1979 when he fathered LeeAnn by his live-in girlfriend Jennifer.

"I was a 22-year-old college chemistry student without a nickel to my name back then, so I worked nights and weekends to support the three of us," grief-stricken Dillon recalled.

"Then one night I came home and found Jenny and the baby gone. She'd left me a note saying she'd found another man, a rich man who'd give LeeAnn a better life than I ever could. She said she was moving out of town, and I shouldn't try to find them.

"I was crushed, but I figured with a chemical company. But his heart ached for his little girl.

"I thought about LeeAnn constantly, and by 1982, I couldn't stand it anymore — I just had to go out and find her," he said.

EMERGENCY TEAM removes the stretcher holding the lifeless body of LeeAnn Amundson. The teen was run over by her father.

pictures of LeeAnn from time to time, but they wouldn't tell me what her new name was or where she was living," recalled never-say-die Dillon, 38. "They said it would be too hard on her for me to reenter her life now.

"But I couldn't give up, and eventually I was spending so much time and money on my search that my boss fired me, my wife dumped me and the bank repossessed my house. But I kept looking, traveling from city to city, living in YMCAs or under bridges."

Then, last month, Dillon's dentist spotted LeeAnn on a street in Mexico City, recognized her from a picture Dillon had shown him and followed her home. Once he'd learned where LeeAnn lived, he informed Dillon his search might soon be over.

"I borrowed some money and headed for Mexico City — as pumped I was pumping out of my skin," heartsick Dillon recalled. "I rented a car and set out for her fancy home in the country, and I was less than half a mile from her house when BLAM! — the poor thing rode her bike right in front of my car."

Authorities said luckless LeeAnn Amundson died instantly in the collision. Pitiful Dillon was not charged.

"I guess everyone was right," sighed the sad-eyed dad. "LeeAnn sure was a lot better off before I came into her life."

SNEAKY SCAMS THAT CAN COST YOU BIG BUCK$$$

By JAMES BLACK / Weekly World News

A uniformed delivery driver knocks on your door bearing a package sent C.O.D. Intrigued, you pay cash for the mystery item and the driver disappears down the road.

But when you open the package, you find there's nothing inside but crumpled old newspapers!

You've been taken in by a hot new scam — which one flimflam man pulled 30 times in a day for a total of $5,000!

It's just one of the many cunning ploys being perpetrated around the world by heartless con men, according to Charles Whitlock, author of Easy Money, a book about the rip-offs.

"Nine million people a year are victimized by con men," revealed Whitlock, who interviewed dozens of victims, lawmen and scam artists. "More than ever, people need to protect themselves by becoming aware of the new and unusual cons that are being hatched every day."

Here, are some diabolically clever schemes currently making the rounds:

THE COIN CON — A con artist pretending to be a drunk old bum hands his victim a pack of old coins, claiming to have found it on the street. On the pack is written, "Reward if found — Please return to Dr. G. Greene," along with a phone number.

The victim calls Dr Greene, who promises a $500 reward. But Dr Greene asks the victim to kindly give a handsome reward to the "poor old guy" who found the coins. With $500 dollars coming soon, the victim agreeably pays the bum cash. "Dr. Greene" is nowhere to be found. And the coins, of course, are worthless.

THE BANK CON — This scam takes place in a busy bank. A dignified man in a business suit follows a customer — often an elderly woman — who has just made a withdrawal. At the door, he tells her that the computer system has suddenly gone down and he must take her money and transaction slip to the counter for "adjustments." He tells her to wait there for a moment and he'll be right back. Instead, he slips out another exit!

THE BAIL SCAM — Posing as the pal of the victim's next-door neighbor — or sometimes as a police officer — the con man telephones his victim in the middle of the night.

He tells the mark that the neighbor is in jail and needs him to post bail. If the well-meaning victim agrees, the con man drives over and picks up the money. "This con game succeeds so well because most people want to be good neighbors and help those in trouble," says Whitlock.

THE BOTTLE DROP — A well-dressed scam artist hurries down the street and "accidentally" bumps a victim, allowing a wine bottle he is carrying to fall and shatter on the sidewalk. The fast-talking hustler declares that the mishap was the victim's fault and demands $50 to cover the cost of the expensive wine.

The intimidated victim hands over the money — not knowing that the broken bottle contained only colored water!

Moms-to-be can predict baby's birth weight better than docs!

Expectant mothers are far more accurate than doctors in predicting their baby's birth weight — even when the doctors use ultrasound equipment, a new study shows.

Researchers at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine asked 1,000 women to guess how much their babies would weigh at birth. They guessed the weight within an average of less than 10 ounces, or an average error of 6 percent.

By comparison, doctors' estimates are off by as much as BRAINMASTER shows I.Q. at 100. The device will be used in lieu of intelligence tests.

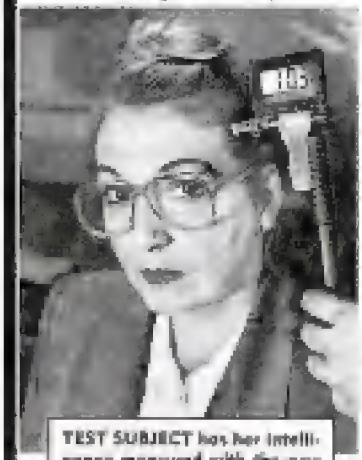
INVENTOR Dr. Mark Creeler uses the scanner to show his 113 I.Q.

By JONATHAN PARK / Weekly World News

LOS ANGELES — You can determine anyone's I.Q. in 15 seconds flat with an astonishing new brain-scanning device that measures a person's intelligence anytime, anyplace!

Brainmaster, as the device is called, looks like an automotive timing light — but don't be fooled.

Experts are calling it the "the most significant technological development of the 1990s" — and predict that Brainmasters will be used in lieu of standardized I.Q. tests before the year is out.



TEST SUBJECT has her intelligence measured with the new device.

"The Brainmaster is going to revolutionize the way we measure the intelligence of school students — and that's just the beginning," said Dr. Mark Creeler, one of 15 psychologists and intelligence experts who have been testing the devices in the United States since January.

"These things are going to be a boon to businesses as well.

"By measuring a person's brain tissue in 15 seconds or less."

The denser the brain tissue, the smarter the person is, the promotional literature says.

"Compared to standardized I.Q. tests, Brainmasters weigh in with a margin of error of less than one percent," said Dr. Creeler.

"So they're not only quick, they're accurate to a fault. You can see why we're so excited by them."

plies for a job, a personnel director can instantly determine if the candidate has the brainpower to do the work that will be demanded of him.

"This could save business and industry billions in the lost or low productivity that results when the wrong person is placed in the wrong job. And the Brainmaster price — $99.95 — is low enough to make them affordable for everyone and for every purpose, even for use in the home," said Dr. Creeler.

Brainmasters were developed by the Japanese electronics firm, Osaka-Nuki, Inc., and have actually been in use throughout Asia since 1985.

But it's only been in the past six months that the firm has been able to streamline the manufacturing process, paving the way for distribution in Europe and the United States.

Spokesmen for the firm decline to reveal exactly how the gadgets work.

But promotional brochures say Brainmasters rely on "so-

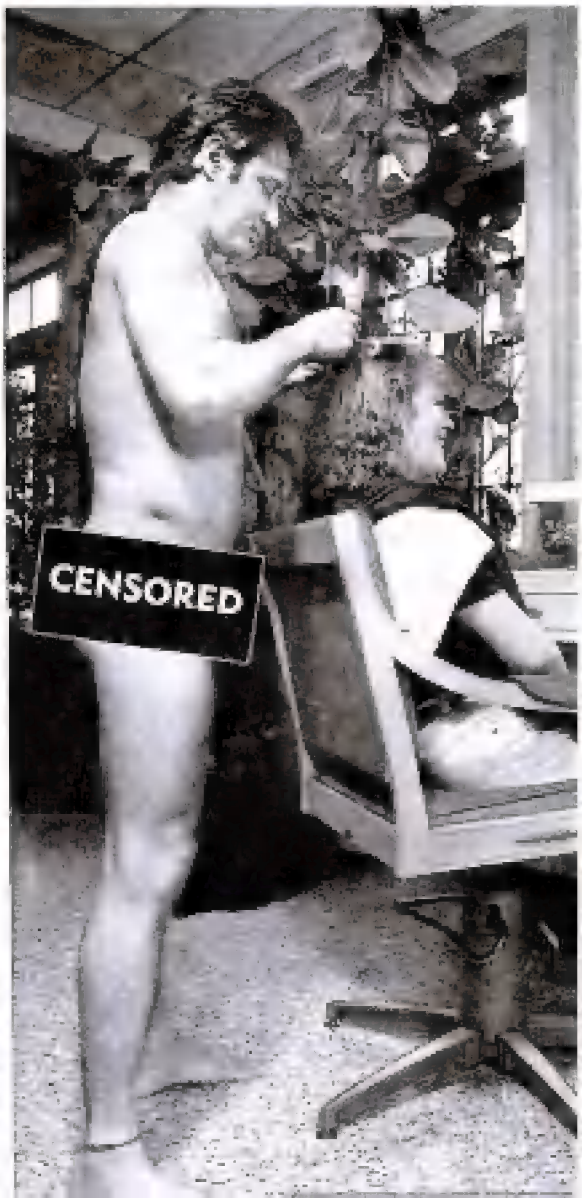
Hairstylists trim and bare it at all-nude



Eager customers don't mind waiting in line at a unique new "his and hers" hair-styling salon where the barbers are easy on the eyes — and completely naked.

The barbering in the buff idea is the brainchild of Barbie Shelburne, a brainy 47-year-old blonde who looks like a bimbo — and laughs all the way to the bank.

"We're on the cutting edge of the barbering business," Barbie said. "We have three gorgeous hairstyling hunks for the ladies and three sexy ladies who can make a man forget he's getting a haircut."

Barbie's all-nude salon — "Simply Barbie's" — is about a 20-minute drive from the Las Vegas strip. The haircuts, pedicures and manicures don't come cheap.

"Men and women can pick the stud or cutie of their choice and get the entire salon package for $30," she said. "We promise to spend an hour with each customer to make sure they get their money's worth."

Business has increased tenfold since Barbie decided to take her clothes off.

And her barbers are comfortable cutting hair in their birthday suits.

"We always have a waiting line, but you can't make an appointment. And if you touch any of our hairstylists on their private parts, you're out on your ear — without a refund," Barbie said.

"We make it clear that ALL you get here is hairstyling, a manicure and a pedicure."

Snipping hair and doing permanents in the nude isn't without its problems.

"It gets awfully cold, sometimes," she said. "And the clipped hair itches."

Barbie turned away a mother who brought her 4-year-old son in for a haircut.

"We didn't want the little nipper pointing to our lady barbers' bodies and asking, 'What's that, mommy?'

"And there's the limp-wristed young man who passed up our cutie-pie one of the studs. He's been coming back every

The ancient Egyptians were centuries ahead of their time when it came to women's rights. Surprisingly, 5,000 years ago gals enjoyed all the privileges that men did, say experts.

"Women in ancient Egypt were fully liberated," revealed archaeologist Dr. Mark Lehner.

"They could buy and sell property, press a lawsuit in court and own a business. We know this because ancient hieroglyphics will mention women in the dining hall.' Many women owned bakeries, inns and even breweries.

Egyptian women also are listed in ancient records as owners of much of the farmland — and in several cases

Experts' shocking revelation:

EARTH'S WATER SUPPLY CAME FROM DINOSAUR PEE

Every drop of water on Earth used to be urine — and 99.9 percent of it was once dinosaur pee-pee!

That's the fascinating finding of U.S. researcher Dr. Milton R. Grillingham, who says animals have drunk and fouled our water supply since life began.

"There's just no getting around it — every drop of water you drink has been drunk before and passed as urine," the New York City scientist told reporters. "And the overwhelming majority of water on the planet has passed through one of the dinosaurs that roamed the Earth millions of years ago.

Dr. Milton R. Grillingham

"When you realize that one pit stop by a brontosaurus could take 30 minutes and fill a small, in-ground swimming pool, that's not too hard to understand."

Dr. Grillingham's research confirms the findings of South African researcher Dr. Robert Johns, who used complex mathematical formulas and computer models to determine that all our water has been drunk before — and that most of it has been drunk many times.

"The dinosaurs did most of the damage early on, but now humans are certainly fouling up their fair share," the Cape Town researcher stated. "The average human being produces one gallon of urine a day and with five billion people on this planet, that can really add up.

"The bottom line is that our water isn't as pure as we like to think."

But experts in the United States say the fact that all our water was once urine doesn't mean it's not safe to drink.

"People in more backward countries might have reason to worry, but in this country our water supply is tested regularly and for the most part has been found safe — whether it was once dinosaur urine or not," said one American health official.

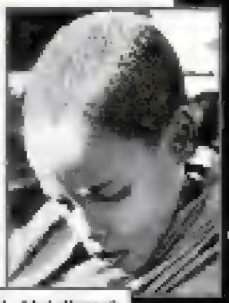
Dad faints when 7-year-old son's 'corpse' walks into funeral!

By SUSAN JIMISON
Weekly World News

CAIRO, Egypt — A grief-stricken father fainted dead away during his little son's funeral when he looked up during the emotional service — and saw the boy standing up, alive and well!



KARIM Abdelfattah takes a stand at his own funeral!

The child, Karim Abdelfattah, 7, had left his home on August 22 without telling his family and went to visit nearby relatives. His frantic father Sayyed alerted police and eventually claimed an unidentified body from the city morgue, thinking it was his son.

"He had searched everywhere for Karim, checking every hospital and walking the streets looking for the boy," said Serag Ben Khalil, a relative. "We all thought for sure that Karim was gone forever and Sayyed was inconsolable.

"When he got a call from the police about a body in the morgue, he figured the dead boy was his son. The child had been hit and badly mangled by a train and it wasn't possible to recognize his features. But he was the same height and weight as Karim and he was wearing a blue shirt and blue pants, just like Karim was when he was last seen." Authorities say the second-grader left his home on the morning of August 22 and walked through the suburbs to the country house of an elderly second cousin, about 14 miles outside of Cairo. Karim told nobody where he was going and his host — who had no telephone — thought Karim's parents knew where he was.

Meanwhile, after a heartbreaking search for the boy, Karim's family concluded the unidentified child in the morgue was theirs. They brought the body home, washed and prepared it for the burial and called together relatives for a small private funeral in their home.

"Right in the middle of the ceremony Karim showed up with a friend," Khalid recalled. "Sayyed saw his son come through the door and just fainted dead away. After we revived him, everybody went wild with happiness. We had a party that lasted all the rest of the day."

Montoya will not be charged with any crime because authorities ruled that he was acting in fear of his own life.

Plants sneeze, sweat & feel sexy — just like US!

By ELAINE ROBERTS
Weekly World News

Plants are like people — they get B.O., fight off enemies, warn each other when they are in danger and even compete for sex partners, declares a top expert.

"Plants do almost everything we do except get up and walk," said Dr. Ian Baldwin, a distinguished plant biologist.

Just like warm-blooded creatures, plants respond to danger, said the professor.

"Giving off 'body odor' is one of the ways a plant reacts when it's being harmed — just as humans get B.O. when they sweat during a panic situation.

"For instance, if a plant is being eaten by a bug, it will give off smells by releasing special chemicals. Bugs are repelled by the odor and go and look for another plant to eat. The B.O. also warns other plants of the same species that bugs are around, and this causes them to release their own B.O. for their protection."

Male plants compete to have their pollen used by female plants to create new plants — just as amorous men compete with rival suitors. They do this by waiting until their pollen grains have grown as strong as possible before releasing them, said the scientist.

"The male plant 'sneezes' out the pollen as far and wide as it can — and when the pollen lands inside a female plant's pollen tube, there's a race among all the pollen grains. Only the strongest will pollinate the female flower."

Like animals, plants defend their territory, said Dr. Baldwin.

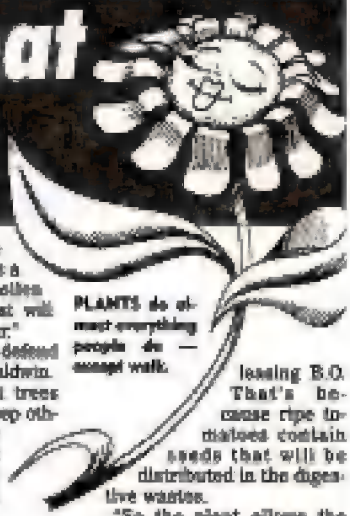
"For instance, walnut trees release a compound to keep other plants away from their bases. This means that the walnut tree gets all the nutrients in the soil for itself."

Plants even have an urge to produce large families, said Dr. Baldwin.

"A tomato plant sits calmly while ripe tomatoes are being eaten.

"But if the tomatoes are being eaten BEFORE they're ripe, the plant will protect itself by releasing B.O. That's because ripe tomatoes contain seeds that will be distributed in the digestive wastes.

"So the plant allows the ripe fruit to be eaten — and thus helps spread its offspring in the world."



PLANTS do almost everything people do — except walk.

Love is better the second time around!

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Rekindling a relationship with an old lover can be the most intensely satisfying experience of your life!

That's the finding of a brand-new study by psychology professor Nancy Kalish of the University of California.

Prof. Kalish found that second-time-around couples tend to be extremely happy in their on-again relationships even after separations of decades — even after marriages to other people. The research found that two-thirds of the reunited couples stayed together.

NEW MIRACLE WEIGHT-LOSS HORMONE

ELEPHANT LOSES 4,355 POUNDS IN JUST 4 WEEKS!

By LILA SCHVANDT / Weekly World News

ROME, Italy — Scientists testing a miracle weight-loss hormone that causes patients to lose body fat overnight say they've completed incredibly successful animal trials — using a 12,000-pound elephant!

The circus animal, called Ciambelli or Donuts, weighed two tons more than her trainers thought she ought to and performing was putting a big strain on her heart, a spokesman for the Tramini Circus said. After four weeks on the hormone, she lost a whopping 4,355 pounds.

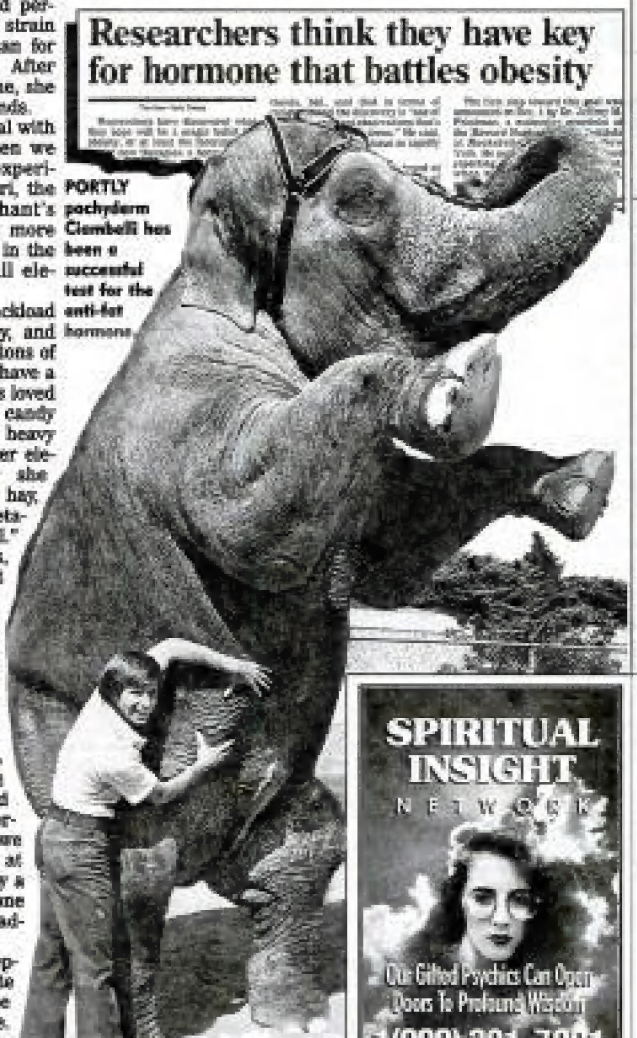
"Ciambelli was a fat gal with an uncertain future when we signed her up for the experiment," said Paolo Rugieri, the 28-year-old Indian elephant's trainer. "She was eating more than any other elephant in the circus, including the bull elephants.

"She'd gobble up a truckload of stale bread every day, and polish off two or more cartons of ripe bananas. Then she'd have a few apples and pears. Kids loved her, and they'd feed her candy bars and soda. She got so heavy she could muscle the other elephants aside whenever she wanted, so she got more hay, more grain and more vegetables than any other animal."

Over the past 10 years, Rugieri said, Donuts went from a sleek 7,400 pounds to a roly-poly 12,123. She got so heavy she broke stools while performing in the ring and lost her ability to stand on her hind feet.

"We knew her health was failing from trying to carry around all that weight and we were afraid she was going to hurt herself," Rugieri said. "So we agreed to let scientists at the University of Milan try a promising new hormone that's been making headlines in America lately."

The hormone, called leptin, decreases the appetite and causes the body to lose extra fat at a rapid pace.



PORTLY pachyderm Ciambelli has been a successful test for the anti-fat hormone.

The UNSOLVED MYSTERY

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Forensic experts using modern DNA testing will finally unravel the century-old mystery surrounding the fate of legendary outlaw Jesse James.

Scientists at Kansas State and George Washington universities will examine the rotted remains and teeth of a man exhumed in mid-July from a grave in St. Joseph, Mo. Relatives of the notorious desperado wanted the remains dug up to put to rest — once and for all — rumors that James isn't buried in that grave. Jesse's five great-grandchildren believe the bones are definitely Jesse's. Others say they belong to look-a-like drifter Charlie Bigelow, buried in the grave by Jesse as a giant hoax so the law would leave him alone. Historians say Jesse was gunned down from behind in 1882 at the age of 34.

Others say he died of natural causes at the ripe old age of 103 and is buried in Texas. A preliminary forensic report is expected at the James-Younger gang convention September 22 in Lexington, Ky. A final DNA report will be completed in February. Until then, the controversy continues.

Was it Jesse or an imposter buried in the grave? You be the judge.

Theory #1

Outlaw faked his death and lived to be 103, says cousin

Notorious badman Jesse James was not shot to death in 1882 as Old West historians would have you believe. He died in 1951 of natural causes at the extraordinary age of 103.

That was the astonishing claim of Jesse's cousin, Ola Everhard, before she died in 1991.

"That's not Jesse's corpse they buried in St. Joseph, Mo.," she told a reporter in a 1989 interview.

"It was a drifter named Charlie Bigelow, who looked enough like Jesse to be blood kin.

"Jesse was sly as a fox. He fooled everybody and lived a comfortable life until his death 69 years later. We buried him in Granbury Cemetery, 70 miles southwest of Fort Worth, Texas. I know this for a fact 'cause I was there."

Mrs. Everhard said she got the hoax story straight from "Uncle Jesse" when he stayed with her and her late husband, Aubrey, in the late 1940s.

"Jesse said he had made a $35,000 campaign contribution to Missouri Governor Thomas Crittenden, who promised the public he would rid the region of outlaws," Mrs. Everhard said.

In exchange for the money, the governor agreed to go along with the hoax. Jesse would be able to live in peace if the law thought he was dead and Jesse would be out of the governor's hair.

"So Bigelow was shot to death, identified as Jesse and buried," she said. "An autopsy was performed but there is no record of it or a death certificate on file anywhere. Jesse had helped the governor and the governor helped Jesse. It was as simple as that."

In the years that followed, Jesse moved all around the country, under an assumed name. But he wanted to be buried in Texas with his real name on the tombstone. Before she died, Mrs. Everhard and other relatives carried out Jesse's last wishes in quiet Granbury Cemetery.

Theory #2

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Jesse James was shot behind the right ear by cowardly Bob Ford, a trusted gang member who wanted to collect the $10,000 reward for Jesse's hide.

"He waited until Jesse reached for something on a shelf with his back

The infamous killer was only 34 years old.

He was buried in the backyard of his mother's home in Kearney, Mo.

When his beloved mother died in 1902, the body was exhumed and reburied here in St. Joseph — less of this year when the remains of the body in the coffin were exhumed.

"We expected a metal coffin but it was made of wood," Chilcote said.

"Several bones were found, including both arms. Also uncovered were 14 teeth, a stick pin and metal handles from the casket.

Chilcote also put to rest rumors that Jesse stashed millions in or near St. Joseph.

"That's a bunch of nonsense," he $300,000 total and they used much of that to live on." Some of the coffin's contents will be examined by scientists at Kansas State University.

The DNA testing will be done by Professor James Starrs of George Washington University, Chilcote said.
